According to our present knowledge, among the 87 known natural elements, 29 has a decisive role. We divide them into three groups according to their quantity in organic substances:

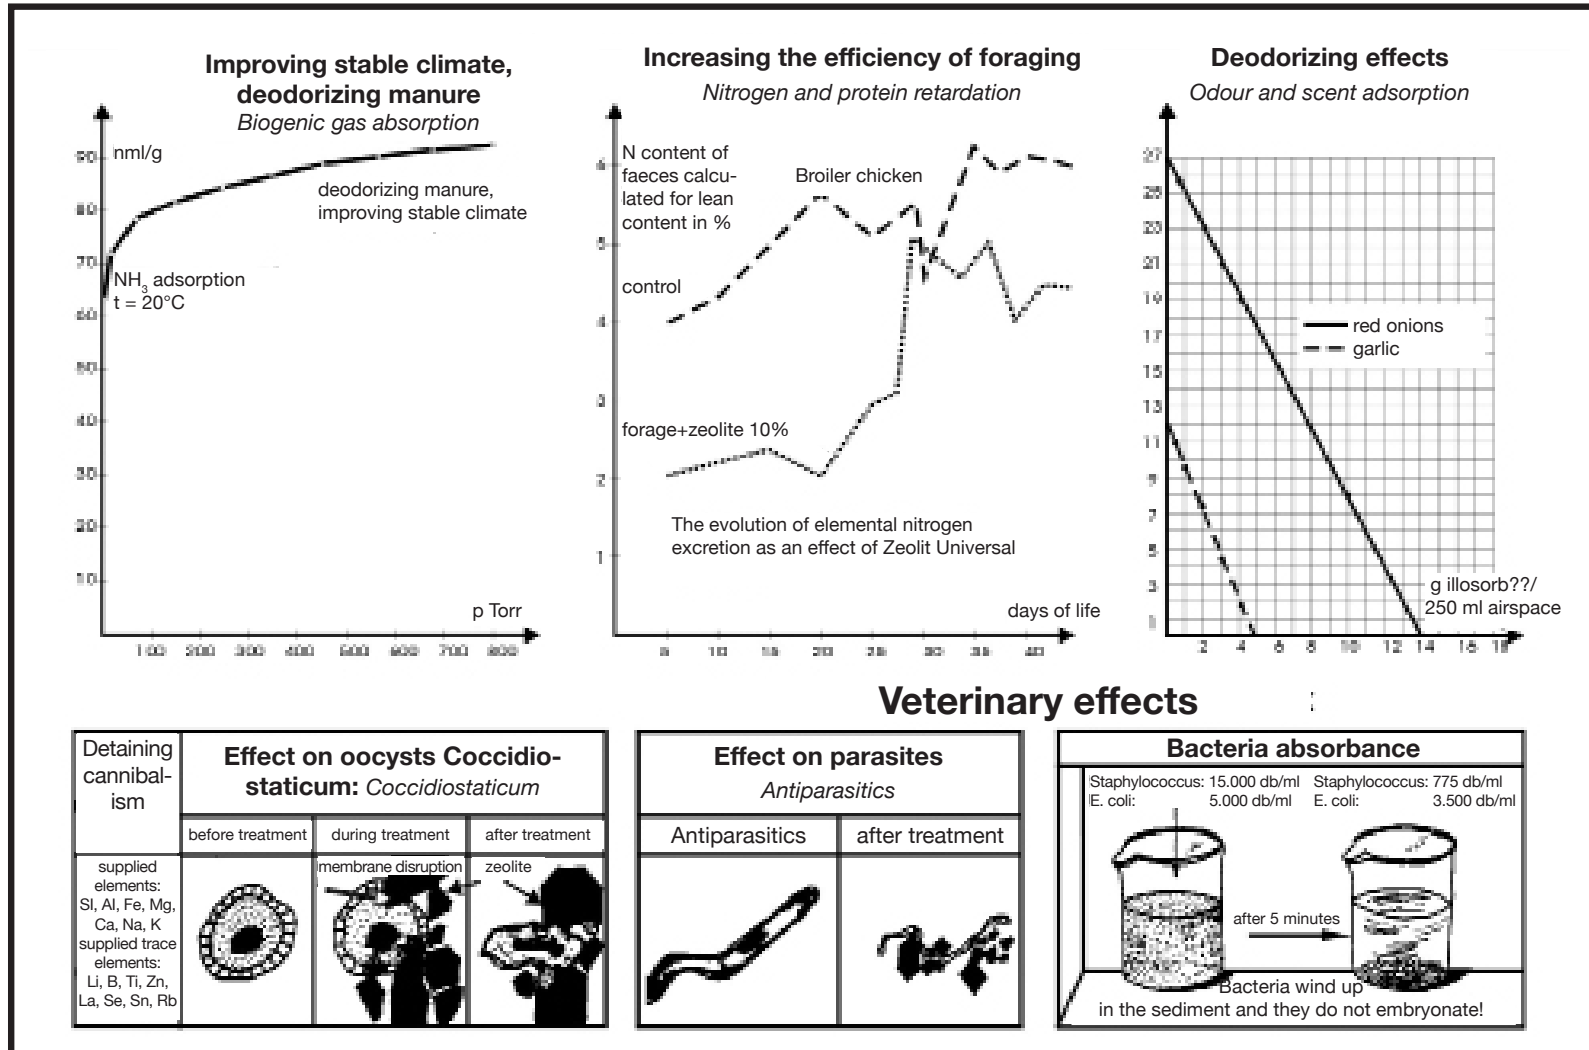

The elements of all three groups were piled up and evenly spread in the area 10-12 million years ago by the volcanism of the Tokaj Mountains. By means of volcanic and post volcanic processes in the past, those chemical materials that provided a natural environment and a cradle for the life on earth 3-3.5 billion years ago were brought to the surface by the volcanic melt escaping the depths (30-35 km) of the earth's crust.

Primary bio-elements:
H, O, C, N, S, P

Secondary bio-elements:
Fe, Mg, Ca, Na, K
(in clay minerals – montmorillonite)

Bio-trace elements:
Li, B, I, Cl, Br, Al, Si,
Ti, Mn, Co, Cr, Cu, Zn,
Se, Mo, Bi, V, Rb
(in zeolitic rhyolite tuff and their detritus – clinoptilolite)

Research data and explanation of the effect of natural zeolitic mineral products on foraging

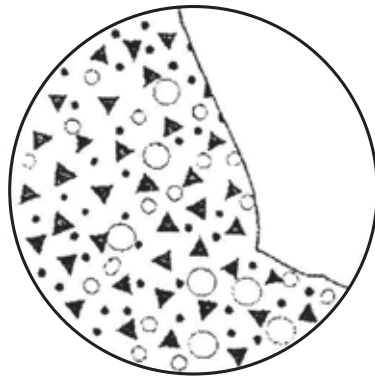

The stages of the natural zeolitic minerals' formation

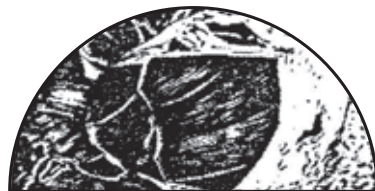

They act as mineral catalysts for humans, animals and plants to enable the adsorption of rare trace elements released while crumbling.

ACIDIC VOLCANIC GLASS CONTAINING RARE TRACE ELEMENTS

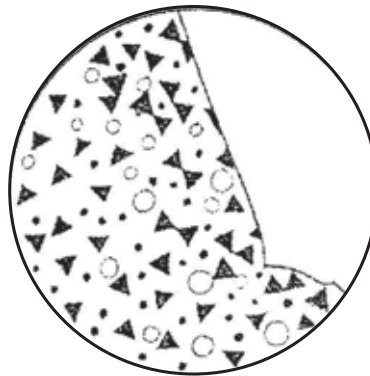

Acidic volcanic glass (SiO_4) is an unordered set of tetrahedrons (\blacktriangle) rock-forming cations, (\bullet) and rare trace elements. ($\circ\circ$)

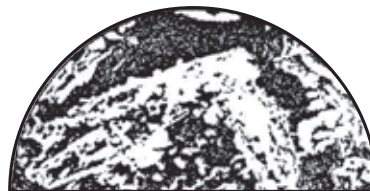

2.

THE FIRST STAGE OF CRUMBLING: DEVITRIFICATION

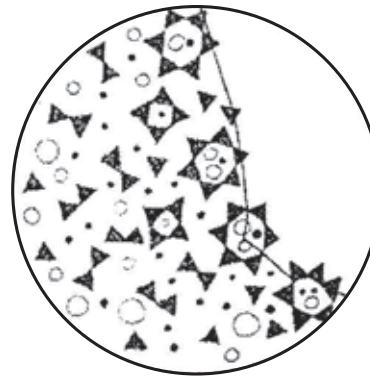

Depending on pressure (p), temperature (t), water (H_2O), and time (T), on the surfaces and in the fissures of the glass, a partial restructuring, aka devitrification starts. Some of the rare trace elements become free, mobile.

3.

THE SECOND STAGE OF CRUMBLING: ZEOLITIZATION

With further p, t, and T effects, on the surfaces, the (SiO_4)-4 tetrahedrons make up cross-linked zeolite minerals. The rare trace elements are removed to this channel. This phase has a very strong catalytic effect.

4.

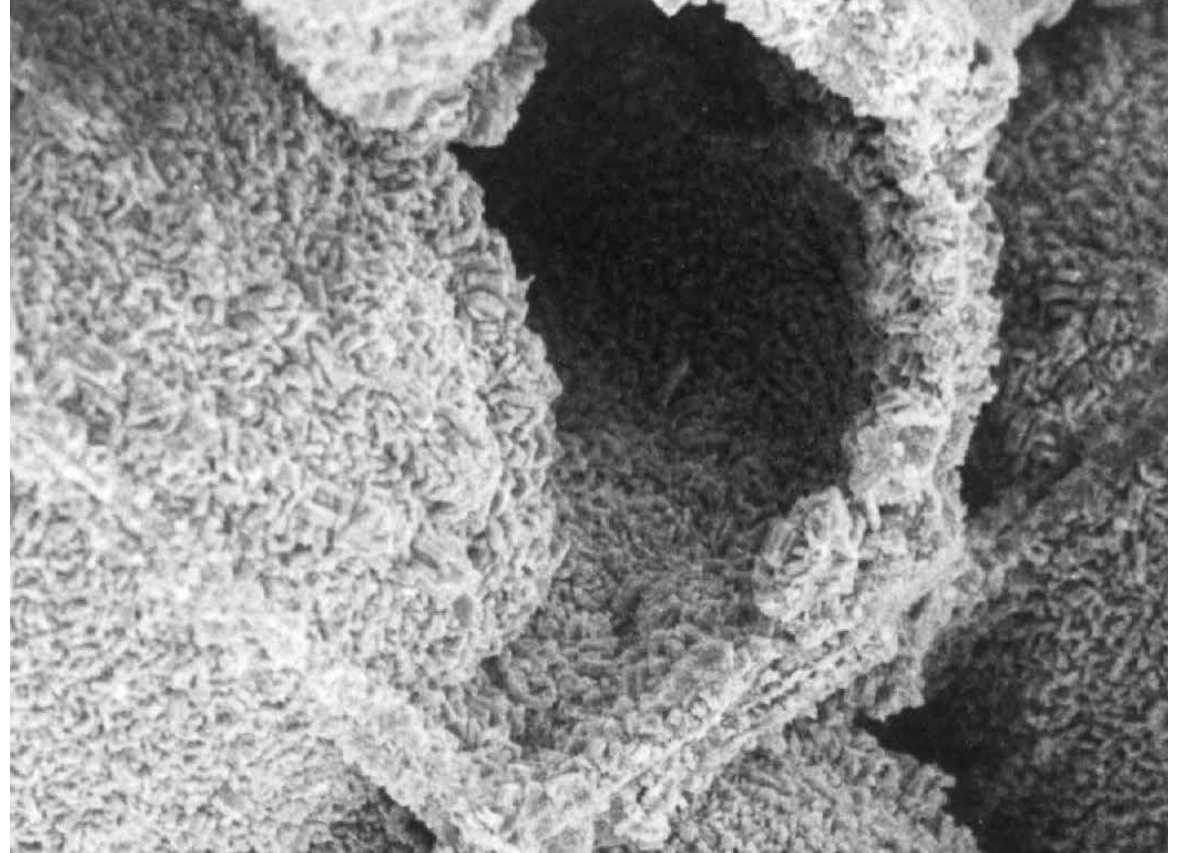

THE FURTHER PROCESS OF CRUMBLING: TURNING INTO A CLAY MINERAL

The next and final stage of the process is turning into a clay mineral. The zeolites and clay minerals act as natural catalysts on the surfaces. They transmit water and rare trace elements to root hairs (plants) and intestinal villi (humans, animals).

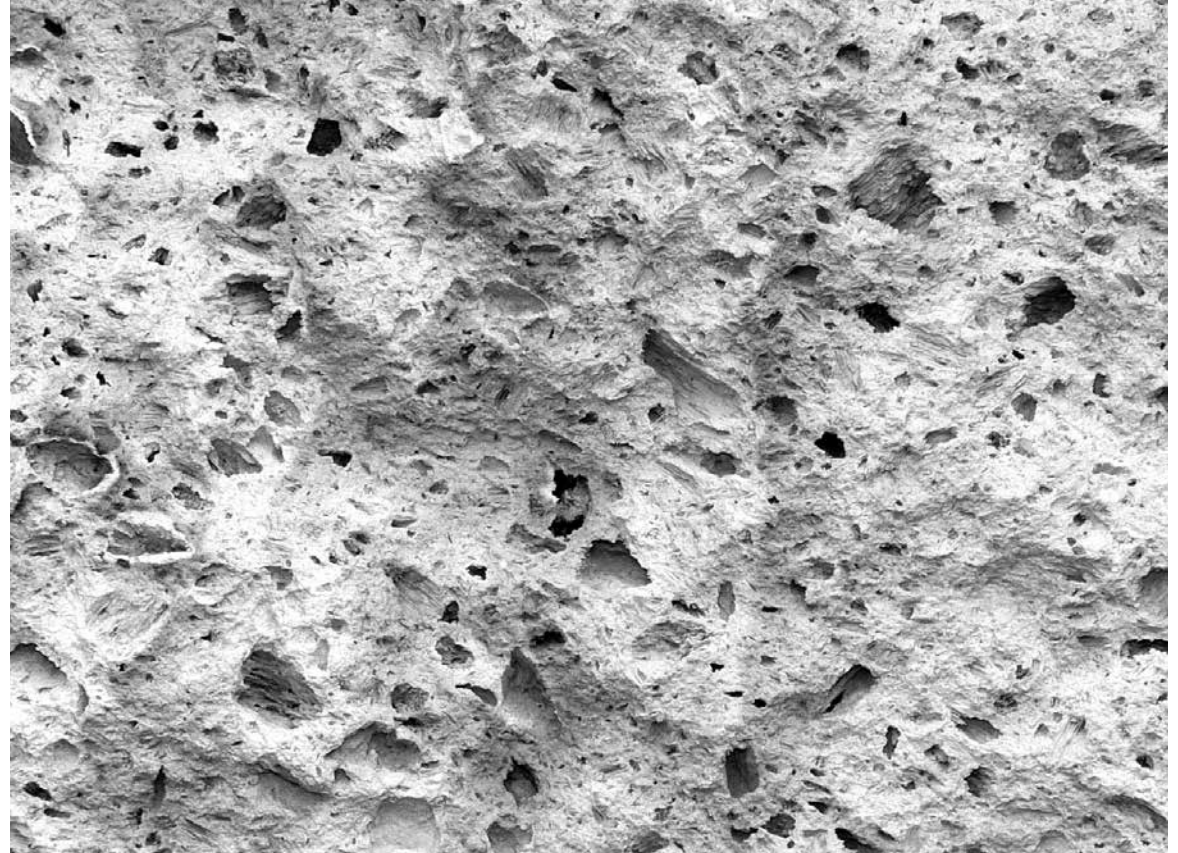

Zeolite crystals grown on the outer surface of the pumice's vesicle (2000X magnification). It has bio-coherent and catalytic properties. This mineral and its clay-mineralised parts contain bio-trace elements.

zeolitic rhyolite tuff.

The cavities mark the place of the washed away clay minerals.

Remunerative characteristics of zeolites:

1. Biogenic gas adsorption
2. Ion exchange
3. Toxic heavy metal trap
4. Bacteria absorbance
5. High albedo
6. Adsorption heat generation
7. Content of bio, trace,
and rare element
8. Anti-parasite effects
9. Catalyst effect
10. Bio-coherence

The characteristics typed in bold are especially important for the human body!

Recommendations:

- FOR TREATING DIARRHOEA, ABDOMINAL DISTENSION, AND HEARTBURN.
- FOR RELIEVING THE SYMPTOMS OF FOOD ALLERGIES AND FOOD INTOLERANCE.
- IN CASE OF CHRONIC GASTROINTESTINAL DISEASES, IBS, COLITIS ULCEROSA, AND CHOLECYSTOPATHIA.

- Zeolites are minerals with a space frame, made up by tetrahedrons as their primary structural elements. Thanks to this characteristic structure, they have prominent adsorption capability, molecular sieve and ion exchanger properties. They are capable of binding gases, water, aqueous solutions, heavy metal ions, organic molecules (e.g. toxins), and micro-organisms in large quantities. Due to their molecular sieve effect, they are capable of filtering the above mentioned substances from aqueous solutions.

- It significantly decreases abdominal distension along with all the uncomfortable symptoms, e.g. distension, intestinal cramps, and flatulence, engendered by increased bloating.

- Before use, read the instructions carefully!

Zeomineral Spaceman

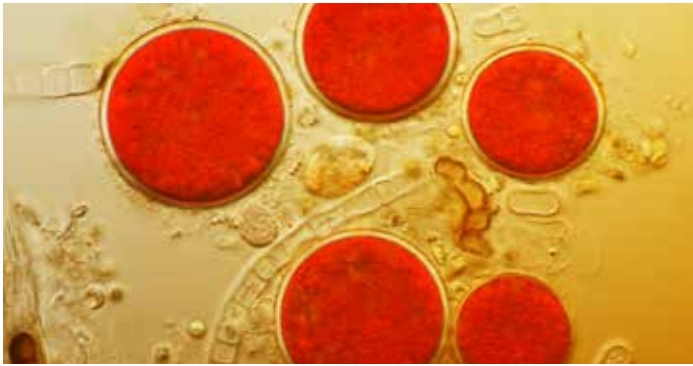

Food supplement capsules

- PROTECT YOUR HEALTH BY FOLLOWING IN THE FOOTSTEPS OF NASA'S RESEARCHERS!
- QUALIFIED AS THE PERFECT NUTRIENTS WITH WHO-APPROVED SUPERFOOD INGREDIENTS!
- A NATURAL WAY TO REPLENISH THE VITAL SUBSTANCES OF THE HUMAN BODY!

The oldest organisms of Earth's history are algae. They were the first autotrophic organisms that were able to create organic matter from the Earth's material system through photosynthesis. They appeared approximately 3.2 billion years ago, in the ancient oceans. They are an essential part of life, contain the most important vital substances and proteins – these are 'the foundation stones' of the human body.

Mechanism of action:

PHASE 1: CLEANSING CELLS • Chlorella Vulgaris has a detoxifying effect and cleanses the body from the most toxic substances and heavy metals. PHASE 2: NOURISHING CELLS • Spirulina Platensis and Lithothamnium Calcareum nourish cells with a record amount, more than 4000 different kinds of vital substances, their biological absorption being exceptional (the highest among organic substances). PHASE 3: PROTECTING CELLS • Natural astaxanthin, known as the most effective antioxidant, ensures the efficient protection of cells. It is made from the extract of Haematococcus Pluvialis algae.

Zeomineral Krill Oil

Food supplement soft capsules containing krill oil

- A NATURAL SOURCE OF OMEGA-3 FATTY ACID
- A BIO-ACTIVE PRODUCT, RICH IN ASTAXANTHIN
- A POWERFUL TOOL OF CELL PROTECTION AND REGENERATION

Active ingredients:

This type of chemical bond gets through cell membranes easily; its absorption efficiency is multiple, compared to bonds without lipids. Its high EPA and DHA content contributes to maintaining regular brain functions and sight.
- ASTAXANTHIN: Krills feed on algae rich in astaxanthin. According to present scientific researches, astaxanthin is the strongest antioxidant. It belongs to the group of carotenoids; this is what gives the characteristic red colour of crustaceans and the colour of the oil extracted from them. Astaxanthin protects cell membranes, especially brain cells. It supports brain functions and the functioning of the nervous system.
